Florence Has Reduced!*SEVEN YEARS REQUIRED FOR IMPROVEMENTS

It will take seven years to complete the improvements contemplated on the Palos Verdes Ranch—three years on the roads and other preliminary work—before the land is actually sold, according to E. G. Lewis, who has taken an option on the twenty-six square miles of land south of Lomita and lying between San Pedro and Redondo.

Mr. Lewis leased the old Trona plant offices in San Pedro for his field engineering work, and will be here about a week working on plans and inspecting the property.

With Mr. Lewis is H. T. Cory, who is the company's engineer. Mr. Cory was for many years associated with the late Colonel Epes Randolph and has just returned from Egypt, where he was employed by the English and French governments on water development projects along the Nile.

The enterprise to be undertaken by Mr. Lewis will involve the expenditure of $35,000,000 on improvements. These improvements will include a great tourist hotel to be situated on the highest point of the ranch; a fine country club miles of paved boulevards and three separate business centers, to serve residents who will take up their homes there.

At present a survey of the property is being made by airplane, and at Atascadero an accurate model to scale, is being made of the entire tract. This model will show the contemplated improvements and their relation to the ranch.

Negotiations for the possession will probably not be completed until November, according to Mr. Lewis. The building of roads and streets and the installation of improvements will be started next spring.

The price is put at $5,000,000, and Mr. Lewis' plans call for the expenditure on the land of $35,000,000 before any sale of subdivisions is made.

Frank Vanderlip bought the ranch eight years ago for $2,000,000, it standing him now with taxes and expenses approximately $3,000,000, so he is making the comfortable profit of $2,000,000. San Pedro Pilot.

CABRILLO DISCOVERY DAY CELEBRATION

SAN PEDRO, Sept. 22.—The facts concerning Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo are meagre, but the few which have been verified are dramatic in extreme. A Portuguese, one of Cortez Captains, in the service of Spain, he set sail from the West Coast of Mexico on the 2nd of June, 1542. He sailed north and followed the coast until eventually he entered a bay, which he named San Miguel, now San Diego. Here he tarried but a short time and once more sailed north, and after three days he reached two islands, which he named Victoria and San Salvador, now known as Santa Catalina and San Clemente.

His voyage of discovery was not ended. Once more he sailed north and on October 8 on the mainland he sighted the bluffs of Long Beach and entered a bay, which he named Baja de los Frimos, the Bay of Smokes, now known as San Pedro. He remained at San Pedro but a short time, and again his spirit of adventure from him forth, and on a more sailing north entered the Bay of Santa Monica, then on to the Channel Islands, Santa Cruz, Santa Rosa and San Miguel. Passing Point Conception on November 17, he doubled the Point of Pines and entered the Bay of Monterey. Again he set forth from Monterey and when nearing Point Conception he encountered a severe storm, and in the struggle with a falling mast his arm was broken and he was forced to seek shelter on the Island of San Miguel. There owing to over exposure and neglect of his broken arm he died January 3, 1543.
